International Symposium Music Therapy and Human Health: Science, Praxis and Education

13 – 14 October 2018

Bratislava / Samorin,
Slovak republic

The symposium is held during the 1st International Congress of the Society of Natural Medicine and XXII Medical Congress of Natural Medicine with International Participation under the auspices of the Mayor of Samorin, Gabriel Bardos, MS.

Musical therapy is developed as an effective, dynamically therapeutic-prophylactic field. It is a recognized independent specialization with a modern education system in many western countries.

There has been systematic scientific research on music therapy for more than 25 years in Russia. On this basis, innovative methods of treatment, rehabilitation, and anti-aging treatment are being developed using music. The presented treatment has received international recognition. On this basis, experiences from many countries in the world are gained from science, practice, and education which allow the music therapy integration like a global, effective system.

Symposium Main Objectives

1. Popularizing the results of leading research and scientific achievements in music therapy
2. Innovative therapeutic and “anti-aging” technologies presentation using music therapy or combined types of therapies
3. Clinical experience exchange
4. Acquaintance with the basic directions and standards of professional preparation in the field of music therapy
5. Creating mechanisms for effective international cooperation and science, education and advanced technologies experience exchange in the music therapy field
6. Discussion on principles of creation, development and the international network coordination of scientific music therapy classroom-practice centers in Slovakia and other countries
